Metro Bank invites Terry Irwin to present seminar on successful leadership

Metro Bank, the first UK High Street bank to open in over 100 years, has invited Terry Irwin, CEO of TCii Strategic and Management Consultants, to present a seminar on the barriers to leadership success at its first business event of 2012.

London, 18 January 2012 – Metro Bank, the first UK High Street bank to open in over 100 years, has invited Terry Irwin, CEO of TCii Strategic and Management Consultants, to present a seminar at its first business event of 2012. Entitled The Seven Deadly Sins of a Business Owner, Terry's presentation will be a practical guide to the seven key "sins" and five key "temptations" that form barriers to success.

"A company's competitive performance is directly related to the performance of its CEO," says Terry. "There's a plethora of books and articles on leadership, but they can be complex and too theoretical, and they only reflect one individual's view of the world. And running a business is much harder than it was even ten years ago. My aim is to show business owners how to deliver the basics of leadership at a much higher level of performance."

Attendees will be able to enjoy a drink and network with other like-minded businesses.

The event will take place on Thursday 26 January 2012 from 6.30pm to 8.30pm at Metro Bank's Earl's Court branch: 247-249 Cromwell Road, London SW5 9GA.
